Refreshments and networking from 13.30
Sheffield Hallam University
Charles Street Building, Room 12.5.14

Ideas and Resources
for teaching Reading and Writing creatively

In this event the speaker will present two sessions:

Putting Pen to Paper

Starting to write in another language isn't as easy as simply picking up a pen or pencil, especially for younger learners. We will look at the difficulties they may face and how we can best support learners as they begin to write in their new language.

Make it with Minibooks

Find out how you can encourage reading, independent writing and dictionary skills using mini-books in all their forms, and take away lots of practical and creative ideas that you can use in your next lesson.

The sessions will be delivered by Clare Seccombe, an inspirational teacher and trainer, resource writer and publisher – a legend! We are absolutely delighted she has agreed to talk to our teachers here in Sheffield.

Clare Seccombe has taught Spanish and French in Sunderland primary schools for ten years, having previously spent 14 years as a secondary languages teacher and AST. She also speaks at conferences, trains teachers and trainee teachers, writes for publishers and makes award-winning resources. Clare is an avid blogger and tweeter who set up and maintains the website Light Bulb Languages.
