

FLAME

Future for Languages as a Medium of Education

FLAME is an initiative led by the Association for Language Learning to support the integration of language learning with other curriculum subjects.

We hope that the initiative will increase the number of primary and secondary schools that combine subject and language teaching, and that in this way we can help to transform the quality of language learning in schools.

FLAME welcomes members from all parts of society, and all teachers who have an interest in combining languages with other subjects, whether bringing subject topics into language lessons, teaching subject modules or teaching one or more whole subjects through a language other than English.

Successful language learning can be achieved when people have the opportunity to receive instruction and at the same time experience real-life situations in which they can acquire the language.

What do we do?

The areas of activity that we are focusing on are:

 Bringing together people with an interest in Content and Language Integrated Learning (CLIL), an umbrella term for cross-curricular approaches to language learning

 Helping teachers to collaborate and share ideas

 Improving the availability of learning resources

 Arranging events for teachers, including opportunities to see outstanding practice in action

 Participating in research projects to build a clearer picture of CLIL in the UK

 Communicating the effectiveness of CLIL to a wider audience

 Providing advice and support for schools interested in setting up a cross-curricular language learning initiative
