

DIRECTOR – ASSOCIATION FOR LANGUAGE LEARNING

The Association for Language Learning, the national subject association for teachers of modern languages, is seeking a new Director to provide vision and leadership for the organisation at a time of change both within the Association and in language teaching more generally.

This is an excellent opportunity for an experienced senior professional to continue the development of this established and highly regarded national languages education organisation. Working in conjunction with the Board of Trustees and a range of stakeholders this high-profile individual will ensure the delivery of quality services, representation and support to all members of the Association.

The successful candidate will be used to working in complex roles which require a range of skills and abilities. The role requires high level leadership qualities; operational and management skills relevant to the organisation; the ability to build and maintain partnerships; creative thinking; good negotiation skills; commercial acumen; tact and diplomacy.

This is a permanent, full-time post based in our Leicester office.
Salary will be in the range £46,278 – £53,650

How to apply

The closing date for applications is 24h00 on Wednesday 19 February 2014. Please send your completed application form, clearly demonstrating how you match the person specification, to recruitment@all-languages.org.uk

If you would like to speak to someone informally about the role or would like further information, please contact Linda Parker (Director) on 0116 229 7603 or email recruitment@all-languages.org.uk

DIRECTOR – ASSOCIATION FOR LANGUAGE LEARNING

The Association for Language Learning (ALL) is the national subject association for teachers of languages in the UK. Its membership is made up of professionals working in languages education, many of whom are classroom teachers. ALL offers both institutional and individual membership and currently has around 4,500 members. The Association provides information, support and professional development opportunities to its members. It has well-established local and regional networks.

ALL runs the biggest annual national conference for teachers of languages, Language World, which attracts around 600 delegates over two days. Communications (the ALL website, a weekly electronic newsletter ALLnet) and publications (Languages Today magazine, the internationally renowned Language Learning Journal, a range of online language specific publications) are a strong feature of ALL's support for its members and the wider community of language teaching professionals. Representation of our members and our subject at national level is another important feature of our work.

Job purpose

- Strategic and operational leadership and management of a charitable and membership organisation, in collaboration with the officers and trustees. (50%)
- Development and implementation of business strategy, to ensure the sustainability and growth of the Association in all aspects of its work. (20%)
- Development of the Association's role with the support of Management Board and the ALL Council in supporting languages education nationally. (15%)
- Representation of the Association at a national level at key events, in national committees and working groups and with stakeholders or to delegate this function as appropriate. (15%)

Primary responsibilities

- Leadership and strategic management and oversight of the charity and its structures: the Board, the ALL Council; branches and networks; special interest groups; languages networks and hubs; ensuring that all activity conforms to Charity Commission regulations.
- Line management of paid employees of the Association.
- Leadership and strategic management of a membership organisation: this includes representation of and consultation with the membership, overview of members' services and acting in the best interests of the membership as expressed through the charity's structures.
- Responsibility for Association's finances: liaison with accountant and other external consultants; management of office finances; overview of membership income; branch accounts; preparation and presentation of accounts to the Management Board; overview and management of external project income.
- Development of a sustainable growth strategy: securing new income strands; increasing membership; sponsorship; fostering collaborative ventures.
