I would like to thank everybody who attended the session and gave me back so much in appreciation and gratefulness! Being part of ALL is so rewarding and indispensable for sharing ideas and resources with other inspired and inspiring teachers!

Happy 25th birthday to this wonderful community!

A lady thanked me for using cursive hand-writing on some slides.

I forgot to mention that cursive hand-writing it is also a code I use to get children used to their penpals correspondence.

Please find following two Sketchnotes produced by Lisa Stevens and Clare Secombe! I LOVED them and feel very honoured that they sketched during my session. Their beautiful way to present what has been said really resonates with me and makes me feel like picking up my colouring pens again! Thank you for accepting to share them here too and discover more sketchnotes about #LW2015 on their blogs

Language World 2015

Ever since #ililc5 I had been looking forward to Language World (#LW2015) for several reasons. First, it was held at Newcastle University, only 8 miles from my house. It made such a refreshing change to be able to hop on the Tyne and Wear Metro to get to a top-class conference, rather than have to make a trek of several hours. Secondly, I was looking forward to catching up with old friends and meeting new ones. Thirdly, it was an opportunity to find out new things and refresh my knowledge of things that maybe I had forgotten. And finally, as you may have read here before, it was an opportunity to practise live Sketchnoting.

Here are the sketchnotes of the talks that I attended. Those with multiple pages I have stitched together using Photo Joiner.net. If you go to the All website, you can download many of the presentations from the conference. I gave

Sketchnoting Language World 2015 #LW2015

Last Thursday I headed to Newcastle for ALL Connected, the title of this year's Language World conference taking place on 20-21st March at Newcastle University. I look forward to LW each year as it's a conference that offers lots of ideas but also lots to challenge my "little grey cells" and make me think.

This year I decided to replace my normal note taking with Sketchnoting as started at #ililc5. I'd tried using Paper app on my iPad there and found it quite tricky to use to the extent that it was distracting me from the session content. I'll persevere and practice further but for Language World I choose a different tool – the notebook and pen! Actually, notebook, pens and pencils! I'm a strong believer in choosing the correct tool for the job, be that an iPad, a pencil and
