

MEDIA INFORMATION 2015

As the major subject association for those involved in teaching languages at all levels, Languages Today represents a unique opportunity to reach ALL's 4,500 members

"Since its launch in 2009, Languages Today has become one of our flagship publications. The theme of each issue focuses on a current and relevant aspect of language teaching, which paired with regular features on news, classroom practice and teaching ideas makes Languages Today not only a must-read for every language teacher in the UK – but also a great opportunity for organisations involved with languages to engage with the teaching community."

René Koglbauer, ALL President

ABOUT LANGUAGES TODAY

Languages Today launched in March 2009 as a full-colour, 36-page, A4 magazine with newsstand design and content values, reporting on the issues that are important to ALL members in a user-friendly format conveying information in an enticing and readable way.

By making an impact with a mix of news, updates and relevant current affairs from ALL combined with concise features, covering topics from student motivation to research findings, overseas travel to government strategy, Languages Today is THE magazine for UK language teachers.

With reader feedback encouraged through letters, competitions, reviews and social media

Languages Today can:

- Respond to members' needs and interests
- Provide a platform for sharing experiences
- Build relationships with members and readers

Languages Today offers an effective medium through which to reach our 4,500 active members and a unique opportunity to promote your products/services to the language teaching community, with special issues focussing on:

- Cross curricular work
- Educational visits and exchanges
- CPD opportunities
- Progress and assessment
