

ALL Together Now!

ALL for primary teachers

ALL Together Now!

ALL is:

- is a national charity with networks of teachers across the country
- the major national professional association for language teachers and teacher educators

ALL:

- contributes to national debates
- provides much needed information & support.

ALL Together Now!

ALL has:

- a special interest group whose members are experienced in planning and delivering language learning in the primary sector.

We are ready for the implementation of the new Programme of Study and to support teachers when languages becomes statutory in 2014.

Ten good reasons to join ALL

1. To be well informed: Members receive information about developments from the world of languages on the website, through the brilliant Languages Today magazine and from online journals.

2. To receive the weekly ALLnet e-newsletter, a source of up to date news.

Ten good reasons to join ALL

3. To connect with the research community: Members have access to and benefit from the latest research. The CfBT Education Trust has just announced a new research project to investigate the positive impact of language learning on literacy at KS2.

4. To be able to network with other teachers: ALL is launching a number of Primary Hubs across the country as local support groups for primary practitioners. The annual Language World Conference is also a wonderful place to meet up!

5. To have access to high quality professional development: Language World is our national conference, a two day celebration of language teaching and learning, packed full of ideas, advice and inspiration. Once again this year we are working with experts in the field to plan an exciting programme of sessions focusing specifically on primary languages, with a place for primary colleagues to meet and discuss together throughout the two day programme of events. <http://tiny.cc/LW2014>.

Ten good reasons to join ALL

6. To receive a regular boost of ideas and inspiration to help with planning your curriculum.

7. To access learning resources, news and events provided by FLAME, ALL's initiative to support cross-curricular language learning.

8. To find out where to get free resources!

ALL has been involved in the development of resources for primary language teaching such as the Primary Project Box and the CFSA's Primary Languages bulletins, and is working on a web page to signpost high quality online resources for the primary sector. We work closely with the Goethe Institut, the Institut Français, Spanish Consejería and other cultural institutes that are providing free learning materials for the new primary curriculum. FLAME also has a resource-sharing wiki 'CLIL4teachers' which is free to access and has links to cross-curricular language learning materials that are available online free of charge.

9. To be part of the International community of language teachers: ALL is a founder member of the REAL network, an umbrella organisation whose aim is to represent the hundreds of language teachers associations in Europe and which has as an objective the development of pedagogic skills through exchanges and joint projects at European level.

10. And finally - to make new friends!

ALL runs a wide range of local events run by our branches and networks as well as larger events. They often take place in the evenings or on a Saturday. Be inspired by networking with other like-minded colleagues!
