From Language Learning Journal February 2023

- Are mid career language teachers happy?
- Research with Austrian and English language teachers found no obvious differences between the two sets of teachers. Three key conclusions:
 - They experience satisfaction from increasing confidence and sense of purpose
 - Well-being is threatened by tensions between job and other responsibilities
 - Desire for further professional growth – frustrating if not available
- “Institutions should not be leaving these valuable experienced teachers to their own devices to sink or swim in terms of wellbeing and professional job satisfaction ...
- ...they should be explicitly seeking out ways to offer concrete support initiatives to ensure these teachers not only thrive during this time, but they also feel empowered to choose a pathway of positive long-term retention to remain within the profession.”

Please respond! Language Trends survey 2023.

- Information from this survey is seen by decision-makers and can help shape policy. In recent years people have felt that schools in areas with fewer challenges than others have been over-represented. Make sure that everyone's voice is heard and speak out on behalf of our young language learners. Please complete the Language Trends England 2023 survey using the links below:
