

ENACT: Around the World Club free package for schools across the UK and worldwide

Schools can set up their own Around the World Clubs, so that children and young people can learn about different languages and cultures while doing hands-on cultural activities with the help of a free online resource, ENACT. The Around the World Club helps teachers bring the world to their classroom! Schools worldwide can access a fantastic free educational package from ENACT at Newcastle University.

Who is it for?

- The ENACT app can be used by people of all ages and all nationalities to learn about a range of languages and cultures.

When and where will it happen?

- The free education package is available anytime

Explore a growing collection of free, multilingual, and multicultural activities designed by contributors from around the world. Each activity is hosted on the ENACT web app and can be easily delivered by teachers, parents, youth workers, or volunteers.

Around the World Club is ideal for all school-aged children in schools, homes, libraries, museums, community centres, or anywhere multicultural learning can thrive. Originally created with refugee and migrant children in mind, it effectively helps in developing mutual integration, cultural empathy, and cross-linguistic learning for all.

Activities include:

- Traditional crafts and paper-making (e.g. German lanterns)
- Calligraphy from China, Japan, and beyond
- Folk stories and performance traditions
- Authentic recipes and cooking tutorials
- Dances and games for movement and fun
- Exploration of traditional clothing and textiles

Children can also co-create and upload their own cultural contributions, supported by adults—making the club not just a space for learning, but also for active global participation.

With rising global displacement, fostering inclusion, curiosity, and intercultural understanding is more important than ever. Around the World Club gives children the opportunity to:

- Discover new languages and cultural traditions
- Develop motor, linguistic, and digital skills
- Challenge stereotypes through fun, shared experiences
- Build confidence and global citizenship awareness

Everything schools need is freely available . Start by downloading the relevant schools pack, which includes step-by-step instructions and links to all available activities.
