

The Association for Language Learning (ALL) is an independent registered charity and is the UK's major subject Association for those involved in the teaching of foreign languages at all levels.

It is produced and distributed three times per year, Spring, Autumn and Winter.

Languages Today is an important part of the ALL membership. Your support in advertising in our magazine will help the Charity to remain sustainable and contribute to the development of language teaching in the UK.

We thank you for your support!

The Association for Language Learning (ALL) was founded in 1990 and is the major subject association for those involved in teaching modern foreign languages at all levels. It exists to represent and support language teachers and is committed to their ongoing professional development.

ALL works to support members, providing them with opportunities to access local, regional and national training and networking events, as well as providing them with practitioner-focused and research-based publications in hard copy and online.

Languages Today is the termly magazine of ALL, and is designed specifically for language teachers. Members of the association receive a free print copy of each edition. The online edition is sold on our website and allows us to reach non-members and an International audience.

The magazine includes:

News from the language teaching world; ideas to help with teaching; reviews of teaching resources; and information about schemes and projects of particular interest to teachers. It follows a day in the life of language teachers, trainers and people who use languages in their job, and illustrates how language skills are used in the workplace, to travel and in government strategy, Languages Today is THE magazine for UK language teachers.

“Since its launch in 2009, Languages Today has become our flagship publication. Each issue focuses on a current and relevant aspect of language teaching, which paired with regular features on news, classroom practice and teaching ideas makes Languages Today not only a must-read for every language teacher – but also a great opportunity for organisations involved with languages to engage with the teaching community.”

Prof. René Koglbauer-Franklin - ALL Chair of Board of Trustees

ALL works to support members through opportunities to access local, regional and national training and networking events - live and online - and providing them with practitioner-focused and research-based publications in hard copy and online.

Languages Today is the termly magazine of ALL, and is designed specifically for language teachers. Members of the Association receive a free print copy of each edition, (Circa 2,500). The online edition is sold on our website and allows us to reach non-members and an international audience and to provide an ecologically friendly alternative.

The magazine content is created by members and responds to current issues. It encourages professional reflection and exemplifies effective practice from practitioners in different sectors teaching different languages. It also features news from the languages world, research ideas to help with teaching, reviews of teaching resources and information about projects of particular interest to teachers.

Languages Today is THE magazine for UK language teachers.
